Penn Jets LLC (“Penn Jets,” “we,” “us,” “our”) conducts its aviation brokerage and consulting services in compliance with applicable U.S. laws and regulations, including 14 CFR Part 295 (Air Charter Brokers). As an intermediary, we fully comply with the consumer protection, advertising, and disclosure obligations imposed on air charter brokers.

We do not hold ourselves out as a direct air carrier; we are not in operational control of aircraft. All flights facilitated through our Services are provided by properly certificated direct air carriers (FAA■licensed Part 135 operators, such as KLM Aviation Inc.) in full compliance with applicable safety and operational regulations.

In conformity with 14 CFR Part 295: - In all our advertising or solicitations, we clearly disclose that Penn Jets is a broker, not a direct operator, and that the air service will be performed by a licensed operator. - Before contracting for any charter flight, we disclose to clients (charterers) the required information, including: the name of the direct operator who will control the flight; our role (broker, agent, or intermediary) in arranging the flight; total cost (including all broker, operator, and government-imposed fees), and any third■party fees (e.g. fuel, landing) to the extent known; whether we hold liability insurance covering the charterer and the proposed limits of coverage. - If any of the required disclosure information becomes available after the contract is signed, we are committed to providing it promptly and offering the client the option to cancel the remaining portion of the contract with a refund, if applicable. - Refunds for charter services that cannot be performed (or are otherwise due) are handled promptly, and in cash or check purchases we issue refunds within 20 days of a complete refund request, as required by the regulation.

Furthermore, we adhere to fair business practices and do not engage in unfair or deceptive acts or methods of competition as prohibited by Part 295 (e.g., misrepresenting our status, misrepresenting aircraft, schedule, pricing, or insurer status).

By using our Services, you can trust that Penn Jets operates as a fully compliant charter broker, respecting regulatory obligations and protecting your interests.
